The "people of Union Carbide" include the men and women who operate the Torrance plant of Carbide and Carbon Chemicals Company.

Looks like water, but . . .

it's really an amazing chemical bringing you wonderful new textile fibers, plastics, and rubber

FROM NATURAL GAS, air, and ammonia, science has created one of the most versatile of modern chemicals—a crystal-clear liquid called acrylonitrile. This useful chemical is the stepping stone to an ever-increasing number of man-made wonders that lead to more new things for all of us.

Dynel, Union Carbide's remarkable textile fiber, is made from acrylonitrile. Fluffy and soft, this tough fiber is woven into everything from work clothes to evening dresses. And women everywhere are excited about the new furlike coats made with Dynel.

Synthetic Rubber made from acrylonitrile goes into shoe soles, gasoline hose, and many industrial products that must withstand hard use. When certain plastics are blended with acrylonitrile, they become shock resistant and gain a toughness that helps them last much longer.

Acrylonitrile is only one of over 400 chemicals made by the people of Union Carbide. They are constantly at work developing still more chemicals to make better products possible.
